BOWEN THERAPY - What to expect

Bowen Therapy is a form of bodywork where you will lie relaxed and as comfortably as possible upon a treatment table usually with your clothing remaining on. The therapist will apply a series of gentle movements on and against your muscles, nerves, tendons and importantly the fascia, which encases these structures. Pauses of time between sets of these movements are given to allow your body to respond.

The experience should be relaxing and the beneficial effect on your complaints is usually felt immediately. Follow-up treatments are generally scheduled a week apart in the beginning after which longer intervals are usually needed to allow time for healing and recovery.

After your first few Bowen Therapy Treatments it is best to follow these steps:

- Drink as much water as feels right, to remain hydrated. Rest, recuperate and recover.
- Avoid strenuous activities as well as other physical treatments including heat and cold.
- Pain can be more focused for a short time so continue to take your usual medication as normal.

HOMEOPATHIC MEDICINE

.The word Homeopathy is derived from the Greek words homeo, meaning "similar," and pathos, meaning "suffering" (such as the pathology of a disease). Homeopathy operates on a law of nature - "like cures like", and has been used clinically for more than 200 years. Homeopathic medicine is a system of treatment that pushes the body to heal and function more effectively by stimulating its responses to become stronger and effective to the condition it is in. Focusing on the root causes of your illness and determining the unique characteristics of your mental, emotional, and physical symptoms we will choose a medicine that would most closely match your health needs.
